FOXY JIM, THE TRADER, VINDICATED BY COMEBACK OF THE FICKLE RUBE

A CHARACTER STUDY OF JAS. McALEER.

It is necessary right at this point to hand it to Managed Jas. McAleer of the St. Louis Browns. The man from Youngstown, O., has put one over and the credit is all his'n.

For some seasons the Browns have been a joke team. Even their most ardent supporters figured them about seventh in an eight-card hand. And that was the position they filled most naturally.

But last winter McAleer pulled off one of his famous trades, getting rid of men whose places he filled with others he believed would prove more valuable. Some of them were youngsters, some hadn't been handled just right and some looked like deadwood.

Already the fact that he knew his little book is apparent.

The Brown in Cleveland put up a magnificent article of ball. But the burning question was: "Will Rube Waddell come back?" Rube answered it himself with a one-hit game at Chicago. It is the premier performance in base ball to date.

McAleer may not win the American league pennant. The chances are he will not. But if he can repeat the sort of games his team played against the Naps and in Chicago, he is going to scare seven other teams half to death.

You've got to hand it to Jim the Trader.

TERRY WANTS TO BREAK INTO THE GAME

Little Ex-Champion Matched to Fight English Lightweight and Hopes to Make Good.

New York, April 25.—The word "retire" when used by the ring artists is a joke. When a man wins a championship, he gets the habit and refuses. After a continual round of pleasure, and having distributed his bank account among the bookmakers and pool room owners, he announces that he will re-enter the ring. Generally physically unfit, his reward is a good beating at the hands of a novice.

Of course there are exceptions to all rules. Jim Jeffries retired the undefeated champion heavyweight of the world, and has struck to his word. On the other hand Joe Gans, champion lightweight, who has retired from the ring a number of times only to return, has not as yet met his equal, and still retains the title.

There is now another little ex-champion who is again to return to the roped arena. This is Terry McGovern, the one-time featherweight champion, who was assigned to the back seat by the sporting public when he fought his last battle with Young Corbett in October, 1906. It was only a month later that he was sent to a sanitarium with no money and an unbalanced mind. A monster benefit was given for him in Madison Square garden, which placed Terry on his feet. A few months later he was pronounced cured and released from the sanitarium and toured the country with a vaudeville show.

When the New York Giants went south to train for the base ball season, McGovern canceled his theatrical engagements and accompanied them. Recently he paid a visit to the Polytechnic hospital where he was pronounced to be in good physical and mental condition.

Terry is matched to fight Johnny Summers, the English light weight, in a 10-round fight on April 30 before the old Broadway Athletic club at Lyric hall. They are to battle at catch weights and McGovern will probably tip the scales at 134. If McGovern comes back in good form it will be one of the athletic miracles of the century.

SANTA FE WANTS CHESS CONTEST

Ancient City Boasts of Many Enthusiasts and Father Intimates That Other Towns Are Slow in This Respect.

Chess players of Albuquerque are requested to get busy. Santa Fe claims to have the best line up of chess players in the territory, if not west of the Mississippi and is gloating over the fact that a team from the Ancient City could put it over a similar team from any other town in the Land of Sunshine. The New Mexican says that games will be arranged with Las Vegas and Albuquerque, and speaking of the chess enthusiasts in that town says:

Probably not few even of the well informed residents of Santa Fe realize the fact that there exists here in their midst a group of the most brilliant and scientific chess players to be found west of the Mississippi. The ability to play chess well is not given to everyone and in cities the size of Las Vegas and Albuquerque only one or two players of note are usually to be found. It is for this reason that Santa Fe should be more particularly proud of having so fine a club.

Among the noted players in this city at present may be mentioned Superintendent Clinton J. Crandall of the United States Indian training school, District Court Clerk Francis C. Wilson, Col. Frank Crygier, Elmer Marsh, the medical profession is strongly represented by Dr. J. M. Diaz, Dr. David Knapp and Dr. James A. Rolfe and the legal fraternity by E. A. Fiske.

Matches will probably be arranged in the near future with Las Vegas and Albuquerque and a local tournament is also on the tapis.

Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at all dealers, 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

ITALIAN STARTS ON TREASURE HUNT

Scientists Expect to Raise Old Spanish Ships and Recover Millions in Gold.

London, April 25.—Dr. Carlos Iberti, Italian scientific adventurer, announces plans for a treasure hunt romantic and alluring enough to make the bones of Spanish conquerors and gold hunters turn in their graves with envy.

North pole and darkest Africa expeditions pale into insignificance beside this one. The discovery of a Klondike or a California alone is in its class.

In short, Dr. Iberti and party plan to start at once for Vigo-bay, Spain. They expect to lift from the depths of the salt sea $20,000,000 worth of treasure that has lain there for over two centuries.

Spanish galleons, loaded with West Indian, Mexican and Peruvian treasure, the product of three years search were sunk there in 1502 by Dutch and English warships whose captains also had the plunder lust.

A very small portion of the treasure, belonging to the Spanish crown, was saved before the battle. Diving expeditions and dredging parties since have failed to recover any great amount. All evidence is to the effect that the harbor depths of Vigo still hold $120,000,000 in gold and silver, and an equal amount in jewels and fine woods. The hulls of the vessels themselves are worth years of hard work.

Although ships have sailed over the treasure for years, no real attempt to recover it has been made since 1824. With the aid of newly invented scientific instruments Iberti expects to do what others have failed to accomplish. C. Giuseppe Pini, an Italian, has invented a hydroscope which is to be used to view the sunken galleons. It is a water telescope of such great power that Iberti has already seen all the galleons and noted their positions and contents.

He plans to clear away the mud from the sunken vessels with suckers and to lift them bodily by means of cylindrical elevators and mechanical arms that will pass beneath the hulls. Since he obtained his concessions from the Spanish government to carry out the operations until the year 1915 Iberti has searched the libraries and archives of Europe for facts as to the position and worth of the treasure.

His scientific instruments were then made by his partner. Spanish gunboats will guard the work.

Much of the original cargoes has of course been ruined by the water. Tobacco, wool and Indian fabrics have all been lost. But the salt water, according to Dr. Iberti, has preserved the fine woods of the West Indies. Portions of the vessels recovered have been found to be well seasoned, and of high value as cabinet woods.

REARING MICROBES AS A BUSINESS

Uncle Sam Breeds Contagious Diseases Only to Learn How to Combat Them.

Among the most important government institutions at Washington is a microbe factory. It belongs to the war department and makes a business of turning out germs of all kinds of diseases in quantities, breeding them in glass tubes, and feeding them upon specially prepared jelly foods.

The establishment in question, which is under the charge of Dr. William Gray, is one of the principal laboratories of Uncle Sam's health service. Whenever a new and interesting "pathogenic" microbe turns up—such as the long sought germ of the deadly Panama fever, which was discovered recently—it undergoes painstaking examination at the factory. It is bred on scientific principles in a specially constructed incubator, provided with every luxury of diet that its fancy demands, and even furnished with living prey in the shape of monkeys, rabbits, or guinea pigs, in order that it may have a chance to show exactly how it accomplishes its deadly work.

The results obtained are well worth the trouble expended. For when a disease microbe has been satisfactorily identified and its life history fully studied means wherewith to fight it are easily found. For one thing, various poisons are tried upon it and the one that seems most deadly is likely to prove, for obvious reasons, the most effective medicine for the malady when given in judicious doses to a person attacked by it.

There is, however, an entirely new idea which is soon to be applied in our army, not for the treatment but for the prevention of typhoid—that

NOTHING TALKS BUT RESULTS WHEN ADVERTISING IS THE SUBJECT

It is not hard for the business man to determine which of his advertisements are producing results, and it is only natural that he should place his advertising where experience shows it will do the most good.

That is exactly the reason why The Albuquerque Citizen is carrying more advertising than any other paper published in New Mexico. If you wish to verify this statement, lay your ruler upon The Citizen and the paper that in your estimation is its closest competitor. Measure them for a week and take the average. You will find The Citizen several columns in advance per issue.

We confess that we are in business for what we can make, and we realize that just as soon as an advertiser ceases to get results, we lose his account. That would be bad for us, so we spare no effort that could possibly increase the value of our services to him.

One reason why our advertisements secure results, is because The Citizen is issued at an hour when people have time to read. Prove the advantage of this by your own case. How much time do you have for reading in the morning? Don't you read the headlines, and maybe an article or two that are of particular interest—and then go to work? This is true of almost everybody, men and women. But when The Citizen comes out, it is different. You have time then to read everything, from telegraph to town topics, from editorials to advertisements. The evening is the only time that busy people have time to read.

We employ a man whose sole business it is to look after the advertising, in your office, in The Citizen office, and in the composing room. He is a busy man, but never so busy that he can't talk over your situation with you. He will advise you to your own best interests (for reasons aforesaid) and give you the benefit of his experience. He will write your ad from your suggestions, or from his own ideas, and he will care for it when it goes into the paper.
